

welcome to the Bush Block

This is a special community place revegetated and cared for by Ludmilla Creek Landcare Group for your enjoyment and to help maintain the natural environment of Ludmilla.

Fires, rubbish and invasive household plants threaten the natural balance of this bushland area. Feral cats also claim a toll on native inhabitants who cling to these small islands which are threatened with urban encroachment.

Ludmilla Creek Landcare Group has worked in the Bush Block since 1995 to help protect the health of Ludmilla Creek's catchment and to retain natural open space.

With the help of many community groups and local residents, the group has weeded, planted and constructed pathways for everyone's enjoyment.

Go to our Facebook Page to find out more about our activities – working days, community plantings, planning nights and educational walks –

www.facebook.com/Ludmilla.Creek

'It's the people who make the difference.'

Another environmental initiative of the Airport Development Group